THE FUTURE CZARINA-QUEEN VICTORIA AN-NOYED-THE FAMOUS SWORD OF SULTAN MURAD-NOTES ON BRITISH POLITICS-LORD FALMOUTH'S WINNINGS ON

THE TURF-PATTI WRONG-FULLY ACCUSED-LITER-

[BT CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.] Copyright: 1889: By The New-York Tribune.

London, Nov. 11.—All the stories about the betrothal of the Cesarewich are the filmsiest fabrications. The Emperor of Russia intends his eldest son to marry Princess Helene of Montenegro, a very beautiful and clever girl, seventeen next January.

THE QUEEN ANNOYED BY HER BROTHER-IN-LAW. This The Queen was greatly annoyed a few months ago and his reputation as one of the kindest and most generous men in his profession and a thorough gentle-Saxe-Coburg-Gotha's "Memoirs," when she found man, that her brother-in-law had printed, without her permission, a confidential letter which Prince Albert wrote to him when the relations between the Court and Lord Palmerston were seriously strained, in which His Royal Highness very sharply criticised the proceedings of the Foreign Secretary, and referred to him altogether with asperity. The relations between Prince Albert and Lord Palmerston were subsequently so cordial that it was a great pity to publish this letter, But the Duke probably remembers the peremptory manner in which Lord Palmerston was in the habit of fealing with the smaller States of Germany, of which H. R. H. constituted himself the champion, and was glad of the opportunity to recall the fact that the Prince did not always express the confidence in Lord Palmerston which he professed during the last seven or eight years of his life. The Queen is said to have protested vigorously against the publication of any more of Prince Albert's correspondence with his brother. THE SULTAN'S GIFT TO THE KAISER.

The Sultan presented Emperor William with the famous sabre of Sultan Murad IV, which originally belonged to Emperor Frederick of Hapsburg, who reigned during the early part of the fourteenth century. is a cross-handled sword of great length, with handle and sheath of solid silver, superbly chased. The Damasous blade is engraved with German inscriptions and the Imperial eagle is carved upon the handle. In the sixteenth century the sabre, which was an heirloom in the Hapsburg family, was given by Emperor Mathias to Count Hunyadi, of that day, who was killed in battle fighting against the Turks, who captured the weapon. For more than 300 years t has been a prominent object in the Imperial armory of Constantinople.

LAND PURCHASE IN IRELAND. The preparation of the Irish Laud Purchase bill is to be left mainly in the hands of Mr. Goschen and Lord Ashbourne, who know more about the subject in its practical details than any other members of the Government. The Chief Secretary and the First Lord of the Treasury will also be associated with them in the formation of this great scheme.

UNIONIST TROUBLES IN BIRMINGHAM. Lord Salisbury and Lord Hartington are both anneyed about the differences which have arisen between the two divisions of the Unionist party in Birmingham.

They hold to the position that the status quo should be maintained in Birmingham as everywhere else and will resolutely discourage every attempt to disturb it. Every general rule, however, has exceptions, and I be-lieve that both Lord Hartington and Lord Salisbury would not object to see a more equal distribution of representation in Eirmingham between the two par-The essential question is that there should be no division between Liberal-Unionists and Conserva-WOMEN AS TORY VOTERS.

In some constitu encies the bestowal of the frauchise upon women would add thousands of votes to the Tory party.

MR. MORLEY AND THE ROYAL GRANTS. One of the Separatist papers artlassly confesses that it was fortunate for Mr. John Morley that his vote to the children of the Helr-Apparent. Mr. Morley thereupon consulted Mr. Gladstone, whom he appears to have regarded as emphatically the right man to extricate him from his predicament. And he was not mistaken, for Mr. Gladstone pointed out that, although he had promised to oppose a grant to the children of the Prince of Wales, yet there was so reason whatever why he should not support an additional grant to the Prince of Wales himself for the benefit of his children. Mr. Morley eagerly availed himself of his leader's device, and this was the origin of the curious proposal which Mr. Smith

LORD FALMOUTH'S HEAVY WINNINGS.

Figures do not always lie, and as Lord Falmouth never was a bettor it is not difficult to compute how large his profits must have been from 1870 to the sale of his stud in 1884, seeing that during that period won nearly a quarter of a million pounds in stakes and that his horses, training and breeding stud fetched ably over 100,000 pounds. This was independent of the large sums he had received for other rses sold privately. After making the most liberal allowance for expenses it will be safe to assert that Lord Falmouth made more money out of the turf than MADAME PATTI'S PRICES.

From all sides I hear about the greediness of Madame Patti, the exorbitant prices she asks and how she does not care whether the people in whose concerts she sings are ruined so long as she receives her money. The fact is this: Madame Patti receives for every concert in Albert Hall 700 pounds, an enormous amount, no doubt. The expenses of the hall are about 100 pounds, the other artists get 200 pounds; elvertisements, etc., say 150 pounds; the whole forms 1,150 to 1,200 pounds costs. The receipts of this rear's first concert were 1,700 pounds; the second wer 1,800 pounds; the third will probably be larger. That is to say, 500 pounds, 600 pounds and pounds profit. There is nobody else in the universe who can fill Albert Hall, and consequently bring anything like these receipts. It should be understood at Madame Patti receives enormous prices because she alone makes enormous profits. BOOKS ABOUT THE GREAT NAPOLEON.

The most important portion of Sir John Harnage's library, which will shortly be sold, is that which relates to the Great Napoleon. It is an interesting set of books, numbering upward of 250 volumes, dating from 1798 to 1855. It includes memoirs of all kinds, both of the here and of the men who made up his eircle and made history. If the English do not secure this set the Americans will. Just now the latter are interested in heroes, and the Napoleon period is one of their chief hunting grounds. A copy of the little ten-penny book of Charles Dickens, "The Operatic Burletta of the Village Coquettes," and which perhaps the rarest of his first editions, is to be old at the Wellington-st. rooms on December 5. Not less interesting in the same collection is a lot designated as "The Rosetti Album." EDMUND YATES.

MADAME MODJESKA HAS HAD NO TROUBLE

WITH MR. BOOTH. A most grotesque and ridiculous story was published yesterday in "The New-York Herald," to the effect that Madame Modjeska intended soon to leave Edwin Booth, with whom she has been playing since the opening of the present dramatic season, on account of Mr. Booth's conduct toward her. It was said that she had been humiliated by being placed in an unsatisfactory part in "Richellon" and that the piece had been played for three weeks. It was also said that Mr. Booth received twice as much salary as she from Lawrence Barrett, who, it was alleged, hoped to make up for poor business here by large receipts in California later in the season. An alleged interview with Mr. Booth was given, in which the great actor was made to speak in a most coarse and brutal way; was simply incredible to those who knew him

In fact it was evident to any reader familiar with theatrical affairs that the article was in almost every particular utterly and cruelly untrue. "Richelleu" did not run for three weeks, but for two, and Madame Modjeska knew what part she was to play in it b Modjeska know what part she was to play in it before she signed her contract. Mr. Booth receives no salary at all from Mr. Barrett, but is a partner with him. The company will not go to California at all, nor anywhere west of Chicago, and it has done a paynug business here. Finally, as to Mr. Booth's interview, the case is explained by the following letter:

HERBERT WARD TO GIVE A SECOND LECTURE. Herbert Ward, the African traveller and the companion of Stanley, will deliver a second lecture to-morrow evening at Chickering Hall on "The Congo Cannibals of Central Africa." This will be Mr. Ward's last public appearance in New-York during this season, as he begins a lecturing tour at Boston next Tuesday evening. He will visit all the principal cities in this country and will be accompanied by E. J. Glave, who has also spent several years in Central Africa among the cannibals.

All the visitors are pleased with their trip, and hopeful of solid results from the conference soon to open in Washington.

At the Baldwin shops to-day the delegates saw several locomotives building that are to be used in Chili. At the Dobson mills they watched the making of carpets, plushes, woollen cloths, etc., much of it made from South American wool. They also visited Fairmount Park and Independence Hall, and afterward were formally received at the Union League clubbuse.

WHAT CHICAGO ASKS OF CONGRESS.

Chicago, Nov. 11 .- At a meeting of the Committee on Congressional Action held this afternoon, the following gentlemen were present: Ex Senator Doolittle, L. F. Payson, George Adams, Congressman Hill and others. In the absence of C. B. Farwell, chairman, ex-senator Doolittle presided. A bill submitted by Congressman Payson was indorsed as the one to be embarrassing position, as a man who had been in high office and who, expecting to find himself again on the Ministerial bench, could not possibly oppose a vote to the children of the Heir-Apparent. Mr. the location of the World's Fair at Chicago. title of this bill is: "A bill relative to celebrating the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, by holding an exposition of the arts, industries, manufactures and products of the world in the city of Chicago, and State of Illinois, in the year 1892." The bill recites the reasons for holding such an exposition in Chicago and sets particular phasis upon the fact that Chicago asks of the United States Government no appropriation or loan for the purposes of such exposition. It provides that all articles and goods imported for exhibit shall be admitted free of duty, and the only appropriation asked for is that of $50,000 which is to be "expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, for all purposes connected with the admission of ign goods for the exposition." The bill also provides that "there shall be adunited at said exhibition by the Government of the United States, from its Executive Department, Smithsonian Institute and the National Museum, such arrieles and materials as illustrate the function and administrative faculties of the Government in time of peace; and its resources as a war power tending demonstrate the nature of our institutions and the ainptation to the wants of the people."

OFFICERS OF THE ST. NICHOLAS SOCIETY. A special meeting of the St. Nicholas Society held at Delmonico's last evening for the purpose of electing stewards and officers. There was only one ticket, the following being elected: President, James William Beckman; first vice-president, Stuyvesant Fish; second vice-president, Frederic J. de Peyster; vice-president, Chauncey M. The plan of a reduction of capital, and immediate resumption, was adopted, with 875 votes in its favor, or 200 more than the necessary two-thirds majority. It is the intention now that the stockholders raise $30,000, which added to the $20,000 for which Cresson's bondsmen are liable, will make the capital required.

SELECTIONS FROM THE MAIL.

TO MAKE VOTING COMPULSORY. To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: I suggest that, as a new amendment to the proposed National election law, Congress enact that wery qualified voter in the United States perform his duty as a citizen, and vote at every National election held in his election district, or give a valid excuse under oath for such neglect of duty. The penalty for neglect could be collected or enforced by United States officials appointed to carry this law into effect I can see no more objection to this law than I can see to our present jury law, both being just laws and in the interest of the country.

ONE CAUSE OF LIGHT REGISTRATION To the Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: While the subject of the light registration is still of interest and uppermost in the minds of those who have the best interests of good government as heart, the cause ought to be more carefully studie than it has thus far been. It is generally attributed to an indifference to politics. There is, however, a valld excuse that prevents thousands of voters fro register ng and falls heavily upon the Republican party in this city. It is the present system of obtaining juries. As soon as a man registers and votes he s served with a notice to appear as a juryman, and is served with a notice to appear as a juryman, and dragged from his business for one, two or three weeks. Inisiness men admit that they owe that duty to the Government, but they object to the system, particularly the inequality of the burden that is thrown upon them by the shirking of those "having a pall," thus increasing the liability to two or three calls a year. In urging his duty of registering and voting upon friends and acquaintances this season, this objection of jury duty has been offered so frequently that I have no doubt it cost the Republicans a heavy vote and may have lost the election. Is it not, therefore, time that a more equitable system of jury getting be adopted?

WOMEN AND THE SCHOOL BOARD.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: I beg leave to express through your columns my belief that the majority of the teachers of New-York are eager for the reappointment of the women Commissioners whose term of office has nearly expired. What have these women accomplished? They have exerted themselves that long and faithful ervice in the lower positions of both primary and grammar schools should secure its equivalent in salary, when the stagnation of the higher ranks has prevented deserved advancement, knowing that one of the chief evils of our system is the bar to progress that inefficiency in the higher positions presents. They have endeavored to regulate the salaries upon a basis more just than that of attendance They have upheld the character of the profession by

They have upheld the character of the profession by insisting upon moral purity as a prime requisite to continuance in its ranks, and they have habored for the purification of the class-rooms, whose ill-savor has cried to heaven for years.

Why should our children lose the benefit of the labors of these women, just when their three years' experience has rendered them peculiarly fitted for the work? True, they cannot be made the tools of politiclass; nor will they be "worked" in the interest of publishing houses, real estate owners, or building contractors; but to the simple-minded these objections are not vital.

GOOD WORK IN THE ROCKLAND DISTRICT.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: In looking over the paper during the week, I have seen no notice of the good work done by the Republicans of Orange, Westchester and Rockland counties. Although feeling sorry about our defeat in the State, it is a little encouragement to us to think and know that we did our duty here. think and know that we did our dary note. In election of a Republican Assemblyman from this district is something to brag of, and the reduction of the majority on the State ticket to 150, the election of our county ticket, with one exception, and the handsome majorities given to senator Robertson and General Hedges, are something to be proud of.

A SKILLED THIEF CAUGHT.

SAMUEL LOBLEY, A SUCCESSFUL FORGER, AR-RESTED BY INSPECTOR BYRNES'S MEN.

Samuel Lobley, about thirty-five years old, a smart thief, who has given the police no little trouble, is a prisoner at Police Headquarters. In 1881 Lobley attracted the attention of the police by several bold thefts and forgeries. He robbed Smith Brothers, jewellers, at No. 182 Broadway, of $2,500 worth of jewellers, at No. 182 Broadway, or $2,000 worth of jewelry, by paying them with a worthless check, and he played the same game on Squire's jewelry store, at olivet Church, in East Second-st. After a pleasant A.-A.-A. Fulton and William sts., and on Starr & Co., in Fifth-ave., getting several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry at each place. He then went to England and from there to Canada, where he was sent to prison

Last year he returned to New-York and with John Clark, who had been a student in a Roman Catholic seminary, managed to commit several bold thefts by representing himself to be a Catholic priest. stole three gold watches from Mrs. Lynch, 929 Broadway, and a scalshin sacque worth $400 from C. A plumber who was searching with a light for a leak in the gaspips under the coal and wood store at No. 121 Third-ave., yesterday, found it suddenly, when business on a reduced capital. A statement was an explosion of gas knocked him down. He was cut on the head slightly by a fragment of the broken pipe.

The explosion lifted one magazine from its place in front of the store, but did little other damage.

GENERAL BUTTERFIELD GIVES A DINNER. GENERAL BUTTERFIELD GIVES A DINNER.

THREE HOTLY CONTESTED CHESS GAMES. THREE HOTLY CONTESTED CHESS GAMES.

The rooms of the New-York Chess Club were well filled last evening with men, interested in the progress of the last evening with men, interested in the progress of the lournament now being played there. Only three games tournament now being played there. Only three games were fought to the end yesterday, and they were hotly wore fought to the first game Professor Holliday beat contested. In the first game Professor Holliday beat Pinkham; in the second game Willeox beat Huntington, Pinkham; in the second game Willeox 2, Horwitz 2, stands as follows: Firsh 3 games, Wileox 2, Horwitz 2, boyle 1 and a draw, Yeston, Huntington, Peters, Pinkham and Holliday each 1, and Heln a draw. The tournament Holliday each 1, and Heln a draw. The tournament Holliday each 1, and Heln a draw. and Holliday each I, and Heln a draw. GLANCES HERE AND THERE

The City Hall terminus of the Third-ave, elevated road is an eyesore and a legsore at the best of times. but when it comes to the worst, or near-by, as during saturday's storm, the attractions of a duck-pond and a mud-puddle are added. The entrance and exit gangway, narrow, crooked, and full of angles and corners, is a marvel of everything that such a gangway ought not to be. Surely it ought not to be thought necessary or economical for the passengers to have to thread this maze by wading through three inches of water and two of mud.

Oliver Dyer's book of reminiscences of "Great Senators" includes the name of Jefferson Davis in the list of subjects. "Many things have happened since then." A number of persons still living must remember Mr. Davis as Secretary of War and as senator, both before and after his service in the War Department: but of these there are probably few that ever think of him as the projector and prime mover of the great surveys by which our knowledge of the country beyond the Mississippi was enlarged and defined, as well as of those perhaps more important surveys by which the practicability of a railway route to the Pacific, nay, of five routes, was iemoustrated. Curiously enough, nearly every office nuraized if these surveys held high rank in the United States Army during the war for the Union. For example, ittiniphreys, sievens, Parke, Pope, Emory, Warren, Abbot. And the war built the road.

When Mr. Davis left the War Office in March, 1857, ernor Floyd, he was in his fiftieth year, and in the prime of his powers. As he passed out, for the last time, through the Chief Clerk's room, he stood for a moment on the rug before the hickory fire, apparently studying and admiring a new gold-headed cane which he balanced lightly in his hand. "Mr. Campbell," he said presently to the Chief Clerk, "you may be interested to know the history of this stick. I mean to present it, sir, to the first gentleman in this Departnent. Indeed, I might say in the service of the Gov-Now Mr. Archibald Campbell, who had ment. Indeed, I might say in the service of the Government." Now Mr. Archibald Campbell, who had "come in with Secretary Marcy." was courtesy and contribues itself; yet medest withal. So Mr. Campbell binshed like the rose on the outer wall as it would blush in June. "Ring the bell, please," continued the Secretary," for Francis Dutcher, "Francis Dutcher was the old colored messenger in the Secretary's office; probably the oldest servant of the Department and one of the oldest servants of the Government. He get the first gentleman's stick, and by unanimous consent deserved it, while the amiable and accomplished Chief Clerk added a good story to his collection.

The old messenger bore, by the way, a striking resemblance (in checolate) to Stuart's portrait of Washington, an engraving of which used to hang within a few inches of his head. A Department "messenger," in those days at least, was the man who didn't carry the messages. The person who did that was usually called a "laborer," but in revenge he did no labor. One messenger habitually minded the "Sechetary's do" and the other drove the busy carry all among other things. The era of landaulets was to come. Of the twelve persons alluded to, guess how many are living after these thirty-two years? Four: Mr. Davis himself, and Generals Pope, Parke and Abbot.

Besides the crowding, another reason for urging the owners and managers of the elevated railways to travel now and then, like ordinary passengers over their own lines, is that they may observe the extraordinary way in which the ordinary passenger is ocidinary way in which the ordinary passenger for the control of the ordinary passenger is ocidinary way in which the ordinary passenger is ocidinary way in which the ordinary their own lines, is that they may observe the extraordinary way in which the ordinary passenger is oc-casionally treated by the servants of the road. Americans are habitually the most patient and long-suffering travellers in the world, but they do not enjoy and mg traveliers in the world, but they do not enjoy and will not long endure the rudeness and even violence that seems to be permitted at some of the stations on these lines, partfcularly on the Thirdave. Go then, gentlemen, go often, send your families, and enjoy the fun along with "the blanked public."

Among Senator Edmunds's many witty speeches and crushing repartees, hardly one can have been wittler or more crushing than his answer to some speech of a Senator from Texas. The Texan Senator had just sat down, hot, exhausted and convinced. Senator Edmunds got up and in his driest manner sent this rustling across the aisle: "Now if my friend from Texas has any good reasons for his proposition, I wish he would kindly state them, instead of giving us the poor reasons, and keeping the good ones to himself." So ends.
